Passage 2

A world-famous Canadian author, Margaret Atwood, has created the world’s first long-distance signing device (装置), the LongPen.

After many tiring book-signing tours from city to city, Atwood thought there must be a better way to do them. She hired some technical experts and started her own company in 2004. Together they designed the LongPen. Here’s how it works: The author writes a personal message and signature on a computer tablet (手写板) using a special pen. On the receiving end, in another city, a robotic arm fitted with a regular pen signs the book. The author and fan can talk with each other via webcams (网络摄像机) and computer screens.

Work on the LongPen began in Atwood’s basement. At first, they had no idea it would be as hard as it turned out to be. The device went through several versions, including one that actually had smoke coming out of it. The investing finally completed, test runs were made in Ottawa, and the LongPen was officially launched at the 2006 London Book Fair. From here, Atwood conducted two transatlantic book signings of her latest book for fans in Toronto and New York City.

The LongPen produces a unique signature each time because it copies the movement of the author in real time. It has several other potential applications. It could increase credit card security and allow people to sign contracts from another province. The video exchange between signer and receiver can be recorded on DVD for proof when legal documents are used.

“It’s really fun.” said the owner of a bookstore, who was present for one of the test runs. “Obviously you can’t shake hands with the author, but there are chances for a connection that you don’t get from a regular book signing.”

The response to the invention has not been all favorable. Atwood has received criticism from authors who think she is trying to end book tours. But she said, “It will be possible to go to places that you never got sent to before because the publishers couldn’t afford it.”

36. Why did Atwood decide to invent the LongPen?

- A. To set up her own company.
- B. To win herself greater popularity.
- C. To write her books in a new way.
- D. To make book signings less tiring.

37. How does the LongPen work?

- A. It copy the author’s signature and print it on a book.
- B. It signs a book while receiving the author’s signature.
- C. The webcam sends the authors signature to another city.
- D. The fan uses it to copy the author’s signature himself.

38. What do we know about the invention of the LongPen?

- A. It has been completed but not put into use.
- B. The basement caught fire by accident.
- C. Some versions failed before its test run.
- D. The designers were well prepared for the difficulty.

39. How could the LongPen be used in the future?

- A. To draft legal documents.
- B. To improve credit card security.
- C. To keep a record of the author’s ideas.
- D. To allow author and fan to exchange videos.

40. What could be inferred from Paragraphs 5 and 6?

- A. Atwood doesn’t mean to end book tours.
- B. Critics think the LongPen is of little use.
- C. Bookstore owners do not support the LongPen.
- D. Publishers dislike the LongPen for its high cost.

Passage 3

“Dad,” I say one day, “let’s take a trip. Why don’t you fly and meet me?”

My father had just retired after 27 years as a manager for IBM. His job filled his day, his thought, his life. While he woke up and took a warm shower, I screamed under a freezing waterfall in Peru. While he tied a tie and put on the same Swiss watch, I rowed a boat across Lake of the Ozarks.

My father sees me drifting aimlessly, nothing to show for my 33 years but a passport full of funny stamps. He wants me to settle down, but now I want him to find an adventure.

He agrees to travel with me through the national parks. We meet four weeks later in Rapid City.

“What is our first stop?” asks my father.

“What time is it?”

“Still don’t have a watch?”

Less than an hour away is Mount Rushmore. As he stares up at the four Presidents carved in granite, his mouth and eyes open slowly, like those of little boy.

“Unbelievable,” he says, “how was this done?”

A film in the information center shows sculptor Gutzon Borglum devoted 14 years to the sculpture and then left the final touches to his son.

We stare up and I ask myself. Would I ever devote my life to anything?

No directions, no goals. I always used to hear those words in my father’s voice. Now I hear them in my own.

The next day we’re at Yellowstone National Park, where we have a picnic.

“Did you ever travel with your dad?” I ask.
